Gospel Luke 16:1-13

Amos cries out against those who exploit the poor for the sake of extortion and greed. They seek to serve only themselves rather than the Lord. LIVING THE WORD

Twenty-Fourth Sunday in Ordinary Time

September 15, 2019

REFLECTION

Today's readings illustrate the freedom, love, and compassionate ear that God gives us in our relationship with him. The Gospel parable illustrates God's forgiving love. He is extreme with his mercy and willing to rekindle our relationship with him at any time (God's love is free!). God allows us to choose our own path, even when it grieves him, because God respects our free will. Notice that in the reading from Exodus, Moses is able to convince God to give the Israelites another chance. Our parent-child relationship with God means that he loves to listen to and hear us. At the same time, we should also respect his desires for us and trust his plan if God does not grant our requests.

ACTION

The parables of the shepherd with the lost sheep and the woman with the lost coin express God's joy at the return of a sinner. Who are you in the story of one of the lost sheep, the woman with the lost coin, or a combination of the two? Using your imagination, write a dialogue as if you were the character with whom you identify (between the shepherd and the sheep or the woman and her inner self or her friends). Look at the challenges you are facing at the end of the story and write a scene resolving your differences virtuously. Then try to implement some of those attitudes and dialogue into your real-life relationships.

QUESTIONS

- ❖ What do today's readings teach you about the Christian life?
- ❖ How do you think God responds to your requests when you take your prayers to him?
- ❖ Why do you think that free will is so important? Imagine life without it.
