Amos condemns the complacency of the rich who seek only their own comfort. In his parable about the rich man and Lazarus, Jesus echoes Amos, exhorting those who have to share with those who have not. Self-sufficiency must never blind us to the needs of others. Only in this way do we keep God's commandments in integrity and in truth.

LIVING THE WORD

Twenty-Fifth Sunday in Ordinary Time

September 22, 2019

REFLECTION

The Gospel can be difficult to understand. The steward dishonestly charged much more than what each debtor owed, keeping the difference for himself. That is why, when he discovered he was losing his job, he called in every person who owed his master money and asked them to pay back the actual amount without his personal cut. In this way, he would have friends when he was out of a job. He was forced to be honest and lose his profits. Jesus said it is better for the steward to lose his profits and live in truth and harmony with others. If we are able to manage money, we should use this talent for God's service and not for our own interests. If we don't, money becomes a god or idol. Even if we only have a little money, we must be trustworthy with what we have and be gracious toward others.

QUESTIONS

- ❖ What do today's readings teach you about the Christian life?
- ❖ What things do I consider necessary in my life that people in poorer countries regularly go without?
- ❖ How often do I spend time praying vs. daydreaming about material things that I want? Be honest.

ACTION

Did you know the United States holds more than four times the amount of wealth of the next richest country in the world and 41 percent of the world's total wealth? Ask yourself if you feel that you need luxuries beyond your actual needs, such as, the newest smartphone or flat screen TV. Say each morning you drink a five-dollar cup of coffee or latte. This adds up to thirty-five dollars per week! Think of what you could do to help others with this money instead of spending on luxuries. Challenge yourself to be generous to others and donate your money to a church or charitable organization.

The story of Robin Hood is really about social justice.

Watch the animated Disney movie and ask yourself in what ways both the government and individual people have a responsibility to care for the needy. How does the greed of individuals affect others?
