Give me these, Lord Jesus, and I ask for nothing more.
Amen. - St. Ignatius of Loyola

LIVING THE WORD

Thirty-Second Sunday in Ordinary Time

November 10, 2019

REFLECTION

The First Reading tells of seven brothers and their mother who had remarkable courage by dying for their faith. Did you know that in one of the many catacombs in Rome where early Christian martyrs were buried, there were about half a million martyrs? Many, many people have died for the exact same faith that brings you to Mass to hear the Word and receive the Eucharist. They knew that God's gift of salvation was worth dying for. Jesus promised eternal life—there will be no death, and many conventions we know here will be gone. We simply cannot imagine the joy that awaits us. Today in western culture our lives are rarely threatened for being Christians, but many people look down on religion. Are we willing to be martyrs by giving witness to the Christian life rather than what is socially acceptable?

ACTION

Many of us are called to be martyrs of a new kind these days. It's likely no one will put us at knifepoint, but we may get teased or called a "prude" for being a faithful Catholic. We may notice that some popular people don't want to be our friends, or that people mock the Church disrespectfully. That kind of martyrdom is hard to bear too! Today, write down all the things you imagine we will encounter when we ultimately receive the gift of eternal life. We cannot truly know until we get there, but knowing that there is something better than anything on earth can help us hold on to our faith when things get hard.

QUESTIONS

- ❖ What do today's readings teach you about the Christian life?
- ❖ What did the martyrs know that led them to die for their faith?
- ❖ Do you notice examples around me either in popular culture or in your own life when popular opinion goes against religion and Christians are laughed at or disregarded?
